

TomTom Go 60 S Button Cell Battery Replacement

This replacement guide will help users remove and replace a faulty button cell battery of the TomTom Go 60 S.

Written By: Tomy Peralta

---

INTRODUCTION

If you need to replace the button cell battery of your TomTom Go 60 S, use this guide. After removing the covering for the device, the button cell battery will be located underneath the motherboard. It is important for retaining the information system vital to operation of the device.

---

TOOLS:

- Phillips #000 Screwdriver (1)
  - iFixit Opening Tools (1)
-

Step 1 — Button Cell Battery

- Use the iFixit opening tool to pry open the TomTom Go 60 S. Start from a corner and drag the tool around the device.

Step 2

- Disconnect the screen from the motherboard by removing the yellow ribbon connector from the socket.

Step 3

- Remove all six screws from the motherboard with a Philips #000 screwdriver.

Step 4

- Disconnect the two battery ribbon cables from the motherboard.

Step 5

- Remove the button cell battery from outer casing to remove battery.

To reassemble your device, follow these instructions in reverse order.